STANFORD, KY., - MAY 11, 1897

W. P. WALTON.

SIX PAGES

THE Hon. Rev. F. Grider, who lives in Madison and represents Casey and Russell in the Legislature, has returned from Washington the maddest man who ever sought office. He went there cocksure of Senator Deboe's endorsement for U. S. marshal, but when he found that there were about 24 others equally as sure of it, he gave Deboe and Hunter a piece of his mind and left for Kentucky, out his railroad fare and several days board at a high priced hotel, besides a good deal of temper. We are told that Mr. Grider is a preacher of the Gospel, but if it is true, we very much fear his is case of answering to another man's call. At any rate the brother ought to give up the one calling or the other. Politics and preaching do not mix. The one is hell, and the other should warn sinners to flee from it.

MEN who go to the penitentiary may not expect to lie on downy beds of ease, bathe in rose water and enjoy all the delicacies of the season, but they should hardly be subjected to the tortures of the Spanish inquisition, as it seems that some of the convicts in the Kentucky penitentiary undergo. The investigation now being made shows a revolting amount of cruelty by Warden Hancock and his assistants, but as the testimony is by the convicts themselves, much allowance must be made. Perhaps, however, it is well enough for people who contemplate committing crime to think the penitentiary is a hell upon earth. It may deter them from the commission and reduce the number of those who are such a tax upon the State.

EDITOR B. J. NEWLON, of the Owen-ton Herald, takes issue with the Times for calling Mosby's soldiers "non-descripts, Federal deserters, outlaws and adventurers" and says "they were in the main some of the noblest and best of the young manhood of Virginia and Maryland." Bro. Newlon ought to know. He was one of the gallant band that gave the enemy almost as much trouble as any other of double numbers. It is a pity that such a dashing commander became such a renegade after the war. But the spoils of office have gotten the best of good men in all ages.

THE bill to increase taxes from 42 to 52 cents is now a law, Gov. Bradley having signed it immediately after its passage and the emergency clause being enacted with it. The governor also approved the bill providing for the payment of interest on State warrants, except those issued for school purposes, for the A. and M. College and for sinking fund purposes. The bill to borrow $500,000 for immediate use had already been signed and as there is now no further urgent need of the Legislature remaining in session they should come home at once and go to planting corn.

THE National House, having nothing to do and the constitution prohibiting either branch of Congress to adjourn longer than three days, now only meets semi-weekly. Reed and his minions hope by this means to force the Senate to immediate action on the tariff by centering public attention and the influence of the trusts and others on that body. The debate on the emasculated Dingley bill, which is improved by the operation, will begin next Tuesday and if the old grannies will talk it to death, the country will forgive many of their former sins.

ALFORD, whose appointment as surveyor of the port at Louisville very justly sent Congressman Caruth to private life, has filed his application for retention under the present administration. The old noodle never was a democrat and the further fact that he wrote an alleged sound money catechism during the campaign is, he thinks, sufficient to entitle him to recognition. He will get a bone, however, for his trouble and put himself further down if possible in decent estimation.

THE colored voters at Pineville, outraged over the way their candidate for jailer was counted out by the republicans, held an indignation meeting and resolved to cut loose from the party which would forever keep them hewers of wood and drawers of water. A club was formed 125 strong and allegiance to the democratic party announced. The colored brother is finding by degrees who his real friends are.

"QUININE JIM" MCKENZIE has sent his resignation as Minister to Peru to McKinley, thus showing that he can resign, if he didn't die. We suspect, however, that force of circumstances over which he had no control, acted for him in both cases.

State Senator Deboe and U. S. Senator Deboe are separate and distinct individuals. He says that endorsements for office that he gave when the one does not go now that he is the other, or words to that effect.

MR. C. E. WOODS has our thanks for the current issue of The Delta of Sigma Nu. He is grand recorder of the fraternity and as such is editor of the publication which appears in magazine form quarterly. It is filled with matter and illustrations of interest and value to the fraternity and represents a great deal of editorial as well as typographical labor. The Richmond Climax prints the Delta and the work would be a credit to any city office in the State.

JUDGES and juries seem to vie with each other in playing into the hands of the cowardly turnpike raiders. In Woodford county under condemnation proceedings a jury returned a verdict that the 5 1/2 miles under consideration were only worth $1. Such verdicts are in conformity with the demand of a certain class, are a libel on justice and amount to little less than confiscation of private property without the safeguards of the law.

WITH W. C. P. Breckinridge to welcome and Gov. W. O. Bradley to respond in their behalf, the members of the G. A. R. who met in encampment yesterday at Lexington certainly had no lack of silver oratory. The Legislature was there too, having adjourned to attend, and the old boys in blue were given every attention possible.

SENATOR BENNETT has returned from Washington, satisfied that no one but John W. Yerkes has the slightest show for collector of this district. A man named Ballard from Anderson thinks he is in the fight, but he is gnawing a file.

ACCORDING to Gen. P. Wat. Hardin, the office of governor is seeking him and according to Hon. W. B. Smith, of Richmond, he is seeking the office. It will be interesting to see whether it will be a case of catching or getting caught.

POLITICS

President McKinley's monetary commission sailed for Europe on the French liner La Touraine.

Hon. W. B. Smith, of Richmond, the only Kentucky Bryan elector, elected, has announced himself a candidate for the democratic nomination for governor.

All other Kentucky contests are held up until the fight for marshal is settled, and that may be about Wednesday, according to the weight of opinion at Washington.

Republicans of the 11th judicial district in convention at Lebanon Saturday nominated W. J. Lisle for circuit judge, and J. H. Woodward for Commonwealth's attorney.

There are no gold republicans. They merely prepared a few gold bricks with which to bunco the democrats. Just now they are talking bimetalism in order to delude the silver men.—Louisville Post.

At the doctor's request, a big delegation called on the president to urge Hunter for the Chilian mission. That job has been promised, but McKinley told the crowd to pick out something else after the doctor had cleared himself of the bribery charges.

Brutus Clay, of Madison, will be appointed to Switzerland or get some diplomatic position equally good. Clay is fortunate in having had the Assistant Secretary of State, Day, as a college chum in Ann Arbor, and continuing the intimacy after their graduation.

The republicans of Madison nominated the following ticket Saturday: Judge, Walter Bennett; County Attorney, Grant E. Lily; County Clerk, L. E. Griggs; Circuit Clerk, H. E. Allen; Sheriff, C. C. Wallace; Assessor, B. F. Cotton; Jailor, J. C. Armstrong; Representative, E. C. Million. The latter is a bootocrat.

The primary in the 10th judicial district resulted in the nomination of Judge S. E. Jones, of Barren, over Hon. W. L. Porter, also of Barren, by a large majority. Jones, who is the present incumbent, carried every county in the district. It will require the official count to tell who is nominated for Commonwealth's attorney, D. J. Wood or Frank Symphon.

When Senator Deboe entered the Senate chamber Thursday he found towering five feet above the heads of Senators a rose bush in full bloom on his desk. Entwined with the roses was a red, white and blue ribbon 10 feet long and a foot in width, bearing characters of gold the court of arms of the Commonwealth and the motto to the State, "United we stand divided we fall." It was the gift of the Kentuckians in the city who want the Senator endorsement for office.

We dropped into the INTERIOR JOURNAL office Monday afternoon and found its excellent force at press. The editor, business manager and every one had hand in it and the way they rush off "the cheapest and the best" is a caution to sinners. The INTERIOR JOURNAL is so good that every other paper in the State clips from it. Some without due credit. We are sometimes unintentionally guilty of it ourselves.—James Maret in Mt. Vernon Signal.

Capt. William Strong, one of the leaders of the "Red String" faction in Breathitt county, was waylaid and killed near his home.

Some time ago citizens of the vicinity petitioned Judge Dawson to have a county road opened along the bed of the Green River railroad. Yesterday these and others petitioned to withdraw the petition and the whole matter was dismissed.

MR. J. C. FLORENCE, who has only been a republican a few years, doesn't think the democrats should be kicked out merely because his party is in power. He has assured Postmaster Rout that should he be appointed postmaster here he will under no consideration accept the office until his time expires, which will be in February next. Like the other patrons of the office, Mr. Florence knows that Mr. Rout is a model postmaster and that he entitled to hold it every hour of his appointed time.

TRAINS.—Capt. B. N. Roller tells us that the afternoon train will be put on the K. C. again about the 20th. He also says that a schedule is being prepared which will shorten the time of the day train to Louisville 20 minutes from here.

SAME TO YOU.—A tramp went to the residence of Mr. B. K. Wearon Friday morning and asked for some old clothes or anything else that he could carry off. When Mrs. Wearon emphatically informed him that there was nothing for him, he walked off a few steps and looking back said: "Lazarus died and went to Heaven; the rich man died and went to hell. Same to you."

THE city council at its regular meeting granted liquor license to Anderson Carr, the colored storekeeper, who paid the $500 down. This makes four saloons now and $2,000 paid into the city treasury from that source alone. An order was made requiring D. P. Hall to remove the wooden screen from his saloon. The attorney and treasurer were ordered to collect the taxes due from banks, under the recent decision of the court of appeals. The question of taxing insurance companies was continued till the 17th, when it is more than likely that the order will be rescinded, since the council sees how heavily companies can make it cut the other way.

PASSED CONFEDERATE MONEY.—Friday night James Haley, who works in Tom Ferrill's saloon at Rowland, was awakened by Arch Jones, a well-known Negro of this place, who called for a quart of whisky and several bottles of beer. A Confederate $10 bill was presented and Haley, without noticing it closely, gave him the difference in change. When the mistake was discovered Jones was sought and when found said that a white man, whose name he would not tell, gave him the money to get some whisky in town but finding that the saloons here were closed, he went to Rowland with him and there succeeded in making a purchase. On a threat to have him prosecuted Jones arranged the matter with Mr. Ferrill and there the ugly business was permitted to rest.

LAND.—Death came suddenly and without warning to Robert Land Saturday night. He was in his usual good health and after eating a hearty supper went out to feed his hogs. Returning he fell as he reached his back porch and calling to his wife, she ran to him only to hear him say, "I believe I am smothering." Those were his last words and in less than 15 minutes he was dead. Mr. Land lived at the old Franklin Owsley stone house at Rowland and his neighbors tell us he was a kind and clever citizen, liked by all of them. Three years ago he professed religion under the preaching of Rev. Ben Helm, who held a revival at the church near his house, and united with the Presbyterian church. He has been a changed man since and seemed to live up to the measure of his profession. A wife, who was his first cousin, and three children, W. B. Land, Mrs. Manuel Perkins and Alonzo Land, a youth of 16, survive him. Sunday afternoon the remains were taken to Preachersville and in the presence of many sorrowing friends were laid away, without funeral sermon, his wife in deference to his oft repeated declaration against such services, declining to permit them.

THREE HELD.—A large crowd was attracted by the trials of the McKinley store breakers Friday and great interest was manifested owing to the prominence of the families of some of the accused. When the case was called in the morning, William Hughes and Sheridan Davis, who were caught in the act of robbing their store by the Messrs. Tanner, waived examination and being unable to give $500 bail were returned to jail. The case of Shannon McKinley was called at 1 o'clock. He was represented by Col. Welch and the Commonwealth by Paxton, Varnon and McRoberts. E. J. Tanner testified that when he had McKinley arrested at Somerset he offered him $10 and then $50 to drop the case, saying that the latter amount would cover all he ever got out of the store. Other witnesses showed that they had been given merchandise checks by McKinley, which proved to have been marked. Both Hughes and Davis said that they had been in the store twice or more at night with McKinley and that they got a several bushel sack full of goods and a suit of clothes. Varny Tanner had been sent to Somerset with a warrant to search McKinley's trunk and a dispatch came, which was shown to Judge Carson, who was presiding in the case, which said that goods belonging to the Tanner store had been found in the trunk. McKinley was accordingly held in $700 bond, which he gave. Hughes and Davis swore that Winter Wright and the Negro, Henry Anderson, were with them on several occasions when they broke into the store, but as there was no corroborating evidence, or anything to connect them with the crime, they were dismissed on motion of the Commonwealth. Hughes seems to be a terrible example of the Methodist doctrine of total depravity. Confessing to a crime that will doubtless put him in the penitentiary for 10 years, he joked and seemed utterly oblivious to the depths of disgrace into which he showed himself. There are said to be others connected with the burglarly and that grand jury developments will be rich with sensations. The Negro Anderson was given 10 days in jail and fined $25 for having a pair of brass knucks on his person when arrested.

PEYTON.—Simeon Peyton, better known as "Squire," died at the home of his sister, Mrs. W. Logan Williams, at Hustonville, Friday, at 3 A. M. He had the grip several months ago and it developed into lung trouble, which has for some time kept him hovering between life and death. Eight of the large family to which he belonged are still living, but they are scattered from Tennessee to Texas and but few of them were present at the burial. Squire Peyton was quite a noted violinist and was known by all the lovers of music in this section. His talent for that instrument developed at an early age and it was through it that he got his nick name. An old darkey named Squire Hocker lived near his father's and when he was a wee bit of a boy he used to run off from home and go to Squire's to hear him play the fiddle. This led to his being called "Squire" and the name stuck to him through life. Mr. Peyton was born with very defective sight and for a long time he has been almost blind, but he managed to get around and make his living. He was a member of the Christian church for years and a kind hearted, clever man.

PARSONS.—At midnight Saturday, after 14 years' suffering, Thomas Shelton Parsons gently fell into the everlasting sleep. In 1883 his right side, from head to foot, was paralyzed and since the day he was so stricken he has been an invalid, but the immediate cause of his death was catarrhal consumption. He was born on the old Higgins place near Walnut Flat, June 20, 1820, and hence was nearly 77 years old. The most of his life was spent in Stanford, where for 40-odd years he was a merchant tailor, during which time he made the wedding suits of many of the older men now in and around Stanford, among them Col. T. P. Hill and Dr. J. B. Owsley. Fifty years ago on the 4th of November last he was married by Rev. Timothy Root to Miss Rebecca Matheny, who was then living where Mr. P. P. Nunneley now resides, and she with eight children, Mrs. F. J. Anthony, of New Albany, Ind.; Mrs. John Smith, White Oak; Mrs. Paul Fry, Louisville; Mrs. S. W. Ferris, New York; Richard Parsons, Joplin, Mo.; Leslie, Len and Frank Parsons, survive him. Mr. Parsons never joined any church until about two weeks ago, when he was baptized by Rev. W. S. Grinstead into the Methodist church. He had read the Bible through many times, his wife says, and he loved to search for truths within its lids. He was ready and willing to go hence, he told his faithful, loving wife, who through the long years of tireless watching by his bedside practically proved the depths of woman's love. He told her Saturday afternoon that he was dying, that he knew she would miss him, that he hated to leave her so lonely, and at the hour mentioned above, as she with some of their children and neighbors stood around his bed, the spirit fled.

His remains will be interred in Buffalo Cemetery as soon as all the children arrive, probably to-day. J. F. W.

M., on Saturday, 15th day of May, for the purpose of nominating candidates for the various county offices.

The Best Remedy for Rheumatism.

From the Fairhaven, N. Y., Register: Mr. James Rowland, of this village, states that for 25 years his wife has been a sufferer from rheumatism. A few nights ago she was in such pain that she was nearly crazy. She sent Mr. Rowland for the doctor, but he had heard of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and instead of going for the physician he went to the store and secured a bottle of it. His wife did not approve of his purchase at first, but nevertheless applied the balm thoroughly and in an hour's time was able to go to sleep. She now applies it whenever she feels an ache or a pain and finds that it always gives relief. He says that no medicine which she had used ever did her as much good. CARL DUNDER'S DODO

IT IS THE STAR FREAK OF HIS NEW MUSEUM.

He Also Has a Lulu and a Hodag and Beer to Entertain His Visitors, but the Beer and the Freaks Do Not Necessarily Go Together.

If you don't read me sometimes in der papers, dot vhas all right, for maybe you can't read. I vhas Carl Dunder, who don't find nottings two times alike in America. One day a man cums in my place and drinks my beer and reads my gas meter, and dot fat police sergeant says I vhas swindled and should look out. Next day another man cums and acts shust the same, and I gif him der boot and vhas fined twenty-five tollar and some cost. One time an express man cums mit a package and collects five tollar, and then I open him he vhas a big stone. Dot fat police sergeant says I vhas greenhorns, and don't know somebody. Next day dot express man cums mit a package and I fight mit him and haf to pay feefy tollar. One day der man who makes der taxes cums in my place and drinks four beers and says he makes my taxes lower. I go by der police sergeant, and he laughs at me and says I better go back to Shermans. Next day another man comes to drink my beer and see about taxes and I run him out and vhas in troubles. If somebody vhas nobody, how you going to tell about it?

By and by I vhas tired and start a comic almanac. She vhas Carl Dunder's Sherman almanac. She vhas pictures. She vhas funny. She vhas so funny dot I laugh all night and can't sleep and my ole womans laugh and fall down stairs and break a leg. My son Shake, he laugh, too, and haf some fits and cost me $20, and so I gif oop der business. I shange dot almanac over and make him serious and pathetic, and dot vhas bad for me. I weep all day long, and my oldt womans vhas like me, and my son Shake, he cries till we haf to call der doctor. It vhas soch sadness dot der butcher on der corner can't attend to peesness more, and der shoemaker in der middle of der block feels so badt dot he hangs himself. Dot makes me go out of dot almanac peesness and try someting else.

Ladies and Shentlemen—I like to introduce myself in my new peesness. I haf opened some saloons for beer, but she vhas divided off in two pieces. One vhas for beer and der order one for a museum. It vhas no sharge to go in or come out and stay ash long as you like. You can stay in or stay out—she vhas der same to me. Dot beer vhas for sale at der usual price, and she vhas ten $'s, but if you don't want some you go by der museum and she vhas shust der same. She vhas innocent for women and children, and no one vhas made better for seeing my place. My son Shake, he got der idea of der museum, and der oldt womans, she haf an idea of working der two in harmony. Shake vhas going to sell der beer, while I shall keep dot museum running all K. O.

I like to call your attention to my lulu. I don't know he vhas a lulu till der man who sells him to me gif me dot pointer. I belief all der time he vhas a stuffed cat mit glass eyes and a bob tail. Dot lulu vhas from Africa, and he vhas so fierce dot efen der elephants run avhay from him. If a man should meet a lulu in an African forest at midnight, God help dot man. He would shust hear one awful scream, and den he would be in kindling wood, and dot lulu would drink his blood and scream. Ha, ha, ha! Nopody shall be afraid of my lulu because he vhas deadt and can't fight and because I vhas at handt to protect der wimins and shildrens. I like to say in conclusion dot nopody shall poke him mit a stick and dot he vhas der only specimen efen brought to America. Sometime dot police sergeant says I vhas a lulu myself, but he don't haf time to point himself.

In dot next page you find der hodag. I don't know some hodags until I buy him for feefteen tollar. I belief he vhas a stuffed fox, and I shmile at him, but der mans he brings me proofs dat he vhas right. Dot hodag vhas from Australia, where he goes roaming aroundt to eat eaferypody oop. While he vhas a small animal he has a big appetite, and if he don't eat one man a day he vhas hungry. He don't fear nopody. If you meet him when you vhas walking out, you vhas gone oop der spout. He shumps on your back and flings you down, and for ten minutes he toys mit you and makes you belief he vhas all in fun. You pet him and call him fond names and belief you vhill go home, but he shumps at you and you vhas in heaven in two minutes. Nopody else has a museum mit a hodag in it. He vhas not to be had. Dis one vhas found deadt, and he vhas valued at ten thousand tollar. He don't hurt anybody unless you poke him in der eye mit an umbrella. In conclusion I vhill say dot der more beer you drink in der saloon part der bigger dot hodag looks in der museum.

It gif me pleasure to speak of dot dodo in dot third page. He vhas rare. You may go by ten museums and you don't find him. My oldt womans said he vhas half turkey, but I pay $20 for him and find outt he vhas a dodo. I vhas not so very well posted about dot dodo, as der man who sells him to me has to go right away to Chicago, but I know he vhas a badt bird. He comes from Switzerland, and he flies aboutt and looks for womans and shildrens. If he finds one outdoors, it vhas goodt. He screams two times and seizes dot victim and bears him off to his nest, and it vhas no good to follow after. Some day you may find some bones, dot vhas all. A full grown dodo, like the one you see before you, can eat one woman or two shildrens efer day, and such vhas der fear of him dot no Swiss woman goes out by her hog pen widout a rope aroundt her waist. You can see by his tail dot dis bird flies by night as well as by day. If a girl stands outt by her gate at night waiting for her feller to come along, maybe dot feller finds her and maybe she vhas—whish! gone oop der mountains to feed der dodo. She kicks and screams and cries for mercy, but it vhas no use. Two years later, maybe, her hatpin vhas found among der rocks, but no more. She vhas inside dot dodo, and der dodo can't be seen.

My friends, I like you to come in and call on me and look aroundt. She vhas no free lunch, and she vhas no prize package, but she vhas a respectable call for beer, and you vhas interested. If you go by my street, you see one door mit a sign of "Carl Dunder's Saloon" on it. A little vhas on you see another door mit a sign of "Carl Dunder's Museum" on it. Dot vhas all right. You can't get into two places by one door, and so nopody makes a mistake. If you go in by one door and don't like it, you can go outt and see some other door and make her all right. If some innocent people call for beer, she shall haf it and be welcome, but if she shust likes to see der museum nopody vill say a word. It vhas my principles to make eaferypody feel at home and haf some good times. I vhas open eafery day and eafenings in der week except Sunday, and I vhas always glad to explain and be friendly. Please remember dot she vhas free to all, and dot my saloon vhas in two pieces—one for der saloon and one for der museum. In der one place vhas my son Shake and ten X beer, in der other vhas me and der lulu, and all of der vhas happy to see der boobie.

The Wise Bachelor's Remarks.

There is no housecleaning in heaven. A really good husband is one that acts decent to his wife when he has a bolt on his neck.

Men love most to be admired; women love most to be loved.

Men always like to have girls think dat they get so scared when they propose.

A woman always judges a man's clothes by the way her favorite actor dresses.

Style is the way all women dress; distinction is the way only one woman dresses.

When a girl giggles at most everything you say, it is a sign some one once told her she had a keen sense of humor.

Not to Be Trifled With.

No one has a more solemn time in the world than the professional maker of jokes. One such man tells how the humorist's wife called away her little boy from his papa's door.

"You must not trouble your papa just now, dear," she said. "In his present mood he is not to be trifled with."

"What is he doing, mamma?"

"He is writing things to make people laugh, and he's awfully cross."—Youth's Companion.

Dr. Holmes' Wit.

Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes once made an address in his native town to a medical association. The president of the association was the son of a man who had been the druggist of the village when Dr. Holmes had studied medicine there. "It is good to look at this young man," said the genial autocrat, "and trace his father's liniments in his face."

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Daughters of the Revolution and Colonial Hall—Billy Mason in the Senate—Reed the Elusive.

[Special Correspondence.]

The Daughters of the American Revolution in the District are engaged in a friendly rivalry between the several chapters to determine which chapter shall succeed in raising the most money toward the Colonial hall which the national society is to build. One chapter has had a lecture, another is to give a dramatization of "Alice in Wonderland," and another proposes to give a colonial ball. The society is the largest organization of women in the country, I believe, and I am told that its annual income is something like $50,000 a year. When you consider that, the proposal to erect a hall which shall rank with the buildings of the government does not seem presumptuous, and even the great scheme of the society—a secret as yet—does not seem utterly impossible. Colonial hall is to be built, congress willing, on government land, and it is to be so built that the entire lower floor can be thrown into one room, in which shall be held the inaugural balls.

Mason and the Senate Rules.

The attack of Senator Billy Mason of Illinois on senate traditions and senate rules has made him a conspicuous figure in the capital. "I was as radical as Senator Mason when I first came to the senate," said Senator Chilton of Texas recently, "and I thought that the rules ought to be changed instantly. The more one studies the matter, however, the more one is convinced that the present system is the proper one. The trouble is that the advocates of a change start out with a violently untrue assumption when they say that the minority rules the majority, and that no votes are ever taken. The fact is that there never was a measure that had behind it a positive, earnest majority that did not come to a vote. Even the so called 'force' bill came to a vote and was displaced, although that measure is often cited as a case where the minority defeated legislation. Of course Senator Mason will get a good deal of attention, and some time ago I would have agreed with him, but I am not ashamed to say now that I have learned wisdom, and that there are things that need reforming a good deal more than unlimited debate in the senate."

Speaking of Mason reminds me that even being a senator is not by any means all beer and skittles. Mason came to Washington determined to answer every letter that might be sent to him. He has kept his resolve. He has worked 14 hours a day. He has kept five clerks busy all the time, and he told me that the answering of his letters so far has cost him more than half his salary.

Elusive Speaker Reed.

Speaker Reed is as elusive as the Irishman's flea. Representative Fleming of Georgia made an effort on the floor recently to show that an appeal from the speaker's decision was a debatable question. Mr. Reed said that it was not.

After the adjournment Mr. Fleming went to the speaker with a little red book. It was entitled "Reed's Parliamentary Rules." In it was a paragraph which showed that the appeal could be debated.

"What do you say to that?" asked Mr. Fleming triumphantly.

"I see it," drawled Mr. Reed as he cast his eye over the paragraph in his book. "But Mr. Fleming, the book is wrong."

The secretary of a certain senator went into the stationery room of the senate the other day to get a paper of pins. "I wonder what in the world becomes of all the pins," he remarked to the clerk in charge of the room.

"I once put that question to Ben: Perley Poore," answered the clerk, "and his reply was the only satisfactory one I ever heard. 'Why,' said he, 'the pin falls to the ground and is lost, for then it becomes a terra-pin.'"

John Allen's New Cane.

John Allen of Mississippi, the joker of the house, carries a new cane. It is a straight stick with a long and flexible branch twisted around it. "This stick," Mr. Allen remarked to a Washington Post reporter, came from the grave of George Washington and was given to me because I embody all of his virtues and none of his vices. The straight part of the stick represents me, and this branch is the Democratic party clinging to me."

Somebody asked Mr. Allen how he stood on the contest over the Democratic position in the house. "Oh, well," said he, "I haven't been registered yet, and I think I am on both sides. It reminds me of a man in my county who was running for the legislature. I met him one day and said to him, 'Bob, how are you getting along with the Prohibitionists?' 'All right,' said he. 'And how?' said I. 'Well,' said he, 'I drink with the liquor men and vote with the Prohibitionists.'"

The Blind Chaplain of the Senate. Blind though he is, there is nothing in the way of current events that escapes the chaplain of the senate. He knows the contents of the morning paper by heart when he comes to address the throne of grace, and his morning invocation, with which the senate is opened, always contains some reference to the latest news, whether it be the death of a senator, or the extent of the floods, or the development of war in the east. The eighty-seventh birthday of Senator Merrill occurred recently, and it was duly noticed in the prayer, which was a eulogy of the "patriarch of the senate, hale in body, alert and vigorous in intellect, fresh and kindly in generous sympathies, crowned with the fruits of an illustrious career of more than two score years in the service of the nation, with the love and honor of his Green mountain state, of the senate and of the country at large."
